News from Sports Organizations

1.1 NASLIN

As originally established in the early 1990s NASLIN organizes conferences on an approximate eighteen-month cycle. The next conference, our 10th conference, will be held in Calgary, Alberta on October 21 and 22, 2005 in conjunction with the annual meeting of the International Association for Sports Museums and Halls of Fame (IASMHF's dates are Oct 19-22, 2005). Canada Olympic Park, legacy home of the Calgary Olympic Development Association, will provide the meeting facilities.

Planning is in the very early stages, but do annotate your calendars for 2005.

New Fulltext Additions to AAFLA's Digitized Publications

The ASSH Studies in Sport History (1988-2001) from the Australian Society for Sports History and numerous publications from Sydney's Centre for Olympic Studies have recently been added. The site now includes Sport in History (v23, no1, Sum 2003+ formerly The Sports Historian) published by the British Society of Sports History. There are gaps in the run of back issues that AAFLA staff hopes to fill soon.

AAFLA staff is also completing a project of adding bookmarks to all of the PDF files for the Journal of Sport History. This will make all of the articles in one issue accessible when a single article is retrieved via the search page.

Two new Olympic Official Reports, Melbourne 1956 and Rome 1960, are expected to be online by mid February, as well as Stephan Wassong's Pierre de Coubertin's American Studies and Their Importance for the Analysis of His Early Educational Campaign.

Reducing the Incidence of ACL Injuries.

This project is a collaboration between the Amateur Athletic Foundation and the Santa Monica Orthopaedic and Sports Medicine Research Foundation. The project is a web-based tutorial for athletes, coaches, trainers and parents with video explanations by Dr. Bert Mandelbaum, team physician for U.S. Soccer. This program also has video clips of preventative exercises. (Use the AAFLA search engine to find this document)

1.4 IASI News

Announcing....

12th World Congress
and
Annual Meeting of the International Association for Sports Information
Beijing, May 16 - 22, 2005
Held at the Beijing Sports University

Theme Title: The Value of Sport Information: Towards Beijing 2008

<http://www.bupe.edu.cn/12th/index.htm>

THE PROGRAM and PARTICIPANTS

The World Congress will be held over a three-day period, May 19-21, with a 5-session structure. Each session will include a plenary meeting, parallel sessions, posters and exhibitions.

The IASI business meetings (General Assembly, Executive Committee, and Open Forum) will be held before the Congress from May 16-18. All interested individuals are invited to attend the General Assembly and the Open Forum.

The official language of the World Congress will be English. All documents and papers must be written in English. Simultaneous translation of speakers in English and Chinese will be available.

Approximately 250-300 participants are expected to attend the World Congress. Participants come from all vocations in the sport world, including:

- information professionals and managers
- documentation centre directors
- journalists
- coaches, researchers, teachers
- sports executives and administrators

Second Announcement and Call for Papers

WORLD CONGRESS THEMES AND SESSIONS

The 5 primary sessions of the World Congress will be:

1. Information Services for Olympic Games and International Competitions

Major international sporting events cannot exist without a strong information service infrastructure. Whether supporting the bidding process, results reporting, media services, managerial decision-making, or coaches in the field, accurate and timely information is vital. This session will feature innovative and visionary solutions created by sport information managers. Specifically, this session will highlight:

- Information service programs supporting major competitions
- Olympic and sport documentation and study centres activities
- Competition results systems
- Media support services at international competitions
- New technology used in information delivery systems

2. Sport Archives and Digitalization

The conversion of paper documents to digital format offers potential benefits to information managers. Digitizing documents improves their accessibility via the Internet, promotes content analysis through the use of search engines, and allows for conservation of the original paper. As an increasing amount of information is created and published in digital form, however, information managers are required to develop new methods of organization, storage, and preservation. Topics to be addressed include:

- Impact of digitization on scholarly research
- Retrieval, delivery, and organization of digital documents
- Digitization and intellectual property law
- Data structure and metadata of digital documents and collections
- Digital conversion project case studies

3. Sport Statistics, Standards & Services

Increasing demands have been placed on sports information professionals to organize and deliver a variety of sports statistics and other factual data. In particular, coaches and sport scientists are seeking the expertise of information professionals in organizing performance evaluation and enhancement statistics. Sports administrators are particularly interested in sport participation surveys, as well as service and program evaluation measurements. Information managers are asked to develop standards and guidelines for statistics databases. Discussions at this session will include:

- Identification of relevant statistics for coaches, scientists, and administrators
- Process of establishing standards for statistical reporting
- Use of organized statistics to enhance athletic performance
- Technological improvements in statistical information delivery
- User-friendly statistics databases: case studies

4. Sport Information for Elite Athlete Development

Elite athlete development is a complicated integration of training methodologies, environment, equipment, and personal commitment. Providing information services in support of this system is a daily challenge for many information professionals. This session seeks to identify creative means through which sport information managers can contribute to the process of elite athlete development. Among other topics, this session will concentrate on:

- Development of training information databases
- Talent identification information systems
- Use of virtual games to enhance skill development
- Supporting the elite athlete's personal environment
- Sport testing and measurement standards databases

5. Future Needs of Sport Information

Obsolescence comes quickly in the information profession. Information managers constantly seek to understand how technology infrastructure transformations will impact delivery systems. In addition, information managers grapple with rapidly changing copyright rules on the organization, delivery and use of information. This session will identify future trends and innovations in sport information management. Potential topics covered include:

- Information overload for coaches, administrators and researchers
- Lifelong learning and continuing education: Use of electronic/print/video/media
- Coach certification and licensing information
- The "wired" coach
- Mass media: Sport information's destiny or future

Deadline for abstract submission is September 30, 2004.

See Website (<http://www.bupe.edu.cn/12th/index.htm>)
for details and requirements for abstract submission and contact details for the Program Chair, Ms Cindy Slater, US Olympic Committee

Online Archival Exhibition at Northeastern University's Archives, and Special Collections

A Proud Past: Boston-Bouv  College, 1913-1977

This multimedia web exhibit displays selected historical materials from the Boston-Bouvé College now housed in the Northeastern University Libraries, Archives and Special Collections Department. The Boston School of Physical Education was founded in 1913 to instruct women in physical education. Now known as the Bouvé College of Health Sciences, the College merged with Northeastern University in 1964. This online exhibit describes the growth of the College, its founders, the development of the curricula and its vibrant student life.

3.2.1 Multi-volume Collected Works

The London/NY publishers, Routledge, (<http://www.routledge.com/>) have produced two multi-volume sets of reprinted sport resources. The website provides the source list of the original articles and essays. For libraries that do not hold backsets of the serials, these compilations will be a good addition to their sport sociology and British sport history holdings.

The Dunning/Malcolm work reprints sociology of sport articles from the key academic journals, e.g. Sociology of sport journal, International review for the sociology of sport, Journal of sport and social issues, plus articles from other sources, e.g. American quarterly, Chicago review, Journal of communication and essays from well-known books e.g. Guttman, A, From Ritual to record: the nature of modern sport (Columbia UP, 1978).

The Polley work reprints sport articles from 19th and early 20th century, mainly British general periodicals, including the Cornhill magazine, Blackwoods, Contemporary review, Fortnightly review, Macmillan's magazine, National review (UK), Nineteenth century and others. While there is access to these articles through the index, PCI Web, Periodicals Contents Online (a Chadwyck Healey product), PCI Web does not provide fulltext. The bibliographic and cost information follows:

A four-volume biographical work is now available from the Gale Group

(<http://www.galegroup.com/>). Notable Sports Figures contains 600 biographies of mainly US sports persons with a selection of personalities from other countries. Athletes, team executives, and media personalities had to meet a selection criteria which included: 1) notable first achievements, including those who broke racial or gender barriers and paved the way for others, 2) the impact made on the individual's sport and society as a whole, 3) records set or broken, and 4) involvement in controversial or newsworthy activities on and off the playing field. Many entries contain a chronology, photograph, and statistical information along with the narrative. Important indexes include separate cumulative occupation, subject and geographic indexes. Bibliographic details are:
