1.0 News from Sports Organizations

1.1 NASLIN

In the last issue of NASLINE, a brief report was given on the successful 8th Conference, NASLIN that was hosted by Nike, Inc, Beaverton, Oregon, Aug.10-11, 2001. Since that time, NASLIN Steering Committee members are considering a number of options for the next venue for the 9th Conference. NASLIN Steering Committee has usually held conferences on an 18th month basis

1.2 Sport Information Resource Centre (SIRC)

<http://chat.sportquest.com/~sircindexing/login/>

From October 2001 to January 2002, the SIRC Indexing Committee has been very busy adding and updating the descriptors used in the international database, SPORTDiscus. Full details of each term, its scope or definition (SN), the related terms (RT), narrower terms (NT), and broader terms (BT) can be found on the SIRC Web Board (see URL above). You can sign in as a guest or created your own sign in and password. If you choose the latter you can send messages to the Indexing Committee.

In October the Indexing Committee posted a complete update of the Balkan states and the former Soviet Union states, now the Commonwealth of Independent States, etc. In addition, many other new terms that were added represent international games and competitions. Below are selected descriptors that can now be used when searching the database:

ADVENTURE TOURISM	PROTEIN KINASE
CLOSED KINETIC CHAIN EXERCISE	QUALITY CONTROL
DELTOID	SELF-TALK
DISTANCE EDUCATION	SOCIAL SUPPORT
EFFECTIVENESS	SPORT TOURISM
GENETIC ENGINEERING	SYNCHRONIZED SKATING
MYOFASCIAL RELEASE	TALENT DEVELOPMENT
NAMING RIGHTS	TALENT IDENTIFICATION
OPEN KINETIC CHAIN EXERCISE	TRAPEZIUS
PERSONALITY RIGHTS

SIRCThesaurus

The Indexing Committee is also planning to update the SIRCThesaurus in the CD ROM format and also with the database vendors. The new edition should be available in June 2002.

Other News

As of January 2002, SIRC has taken on the role of resource and documentation centre for the Canadian national ADR-SPORT-RED program, an out of court settlement system for disputes that offers mediation and arbitration services to the national sports community. For further information on this program, consult the website: <http://www.adrsportred.ca/>

SIRC will also start indexing the articles from the Greek sports psychology journal called Athlitiki Psychologia starting with the issues published in 2000. The articles are in Greek with English abstracts. For information on this journal consult the website of the Hellenic Society of Sport Psychology, the journal's publisher, <http://www.cc.uoa.gr/tefaa/hssp/>

1.3 Amateur Athletic Foundation of Los Angeles (AAFLA)

<http://www.aafla.org/>

The AAFLA Library has been very active in the past year with the addition of large collections, the completion of the digitization work on Olympic Review and the publication of another research study (available online).

The AAF Sports Library acquired two major collections in 2001: the National Track & Field Research Collection, formerly owned by USA Track & Field, and the Ralph Miller Golf Library, donated to the AAF by the City of Industry thanks to the efforts of John Argue. The track collection totals more than 1,000 feet of shelf space and is the world's largest English-language collection on the sport. The Ralph Miller Library is one of the world's top golf collections and filled more than 350 boxes when it was moved.

The library began the process of organizing and cataloging both collections in 2001. Both collections should be available for public use in summer 2002 and will significantly enhance the AAF's stature as a center for sport research. As reported in previous NASLINE issues, AAF's cataloguing records are sent to OCLC's WorldCat, thus enhancing the sport holdings of this large union catalogue and assisting in making their collections more visible. AAFLA maintains a web accessible catalogue also.

The AAF library and the Olympic Museum Library in Lausanne, Switzerland completed a three-month exchange of employees during the autumn of 2001. Daniel Bell, the AAF's research director and webmaster, went to Switzerland, while Evelyne Moosmann, a librarian at the Olympic Museum, went to Los Angeles. Ms. Moosmann, who speaks several European languages, cataloged foreign-language books and prepared French-language Olympic materials for digitization and publication on the AAF Web site. Mr. Bell developed a bibliography of resources in the museum related to international games, created historical summaries for fifty of the major international games, completed a survey of citations in SPORTDiscus, compiled future schedule information and issued a final report describing the resources in the Library, Documentation, Archives, Photos, Images and Sound, and Artifacts Collections of the Olympic Museum. Both institutions viewed the exchange as a success.

In December 2001, the library staff completed an update of the interactive CD ROM, An Olympic Journey: The Story of Women in the Olympic Games to include information about the Sydney Games. Now in its fourth edition, "An Olympic Journey" has been widely distributed. Every public middle school in Georgia received a copy in 1996. The Australian government distributed 10,000 copies to Australian schools in 2000. The CD ROM was exhibited in the Olympic Museum in Lausanne, and as part of an exhibit in the Olympic Arts Festival in Atlanta. Currently, it is on public exhibit at the Australian Institute of Sport in Canberra, where it is seen by thousands of school children each year. The AAF will distribute the new edition to schools in Los Angeles and Utah, as well as to sport libraries throughout the world before the Salt Lake City Winter Games.

While many academic and public libraries reported declining usage during the past year due to increased usage of the World Wide Web, user visits of the AAF library actually increased slightly compared to 2000. The library received a total of 10,640 user visits and reference questions received by mail, e-mail or telephone. That represented a 6 percent increase.

The library staff also completed a major Web site project, finishing the digitization of the IOC's Olympic Review. The AAF Web site now offers a complete run in fulltext of the journal from 1894 through 1999.

Visits to the AAF Web site totaled 467,207, the highest number ever in a non-Olympic year. Digitized documents from the library collection continued to be a more attraction for site visitors. More than a half million of these documents were downloaded in 2001.

1.4 Other News Bytes

National Baseball Hall of Fame and Museum, Inc. (NBHFM)

<http://baseballasamerica.org/schedule.htm>

James Gates, Library Director at the NBHFM announced this week that the Museum has designed and assembled a display and exhibition called Baseball As America that will begin a nationwide tour starting in March 2002. This exhibition is a national celebration of America's romance with baseball and will include treasured artifacts from the Museum.

The exhibit opening will be on March 16 at the American Museum of Natural History in New York City and will stay until August 2 when it moves to the National History Museum of Los Angeles County. For a tour schedule to other venues including Chicago, Cincinnati, St. Petersburg, FL, Washington, DC and St. Louis, see the website URL above.

Springfield College, Babson Library, Archives and Special Collections

<http://www.spfldcol.edu/>

In January, 2002 it was announced that "Springfield College has been awarded a $92,780 grant to organize, digitize and provide public access online to almost 2,000 historical photographs and images of YMCA work from the late nineteenth and early twentieth centuries. The college's Babson Library was one of 18 libraries nationwide chosen by the Institute of Museum and Library Services (IMLS) for funding for a model project that has far-reaching impact throughout the library community." The IMLS is an independent US federal agency providing support to over 15,000 museums and 122,000 libraries.

This collection of photographs, lantern slides, albums and other irreplaceable images documents the work of the YMCA. For the sports historian this collection will have images of notable physical educators, James Naismith, Luther Halsey Gulick, William Morgan, Oliver Morse, among others.

The project is scheduled for completion by October 2002. It will be possible to search for images by subject and descriptive keywords through Voyager, the library's web-based catalog. Digital copies will be available for reproduction and publication.

2.2 Scholarly Websites

Websites on Youth Sports

With the Thomas Junta involuntary manslaughter trial in Cambridge, Massachusetts in the news recently, there are many websites for youth sports, coaches, sports parents, sports officials that have information on youth sports and address the topics of sportsmanship, fair play, competition and ethical behavior. Many of the youth sport, coaching and national/local sport specific organizations carry and promote guidelines and codes of ethics. These websites have sections for parents, coaches, officials and players.

Center for Sports Parenting

<http://www.sportsparenting.org/>

This Center is part of the Institute for International Sport at the University of Rhode Island. One of the main goals is to become a national clearinghouse for individuals involved in youth sport. The website has information on print materials that have been recently published plus a number of fulltext articles, e.g. Value of Winning and Losing, When It was a Game, Top Ten Tips for Coaching Kids in Sport. They also sell books e.g. Bigelow, Bob; Moroney, Tom & Hall, Linda. Just let the kids play: how to stop other adults from ruining your children's joy and success in youth sports. (Deerfield Beach, FL: Health Communications, 2001. 320p. ISBN 1558749276) Web: <http://www.hci-online.com/>

Character Counts <http://www.charactercounts.org/>

Sponsored by the Josephson Institute of Ethics in California, this website has information and guidelines on sportsmanship and ethics in sports for parents, coaches and physical educators.

Citizenship Through Sports Alliance <http://www.sportsmanship.org/>

Institute for the Study of Youth Sports, Michigan State University
<http://ed-web3.edu.msu.edu/ysi/>

MomsTeam.com, <http://www.momsteam.com/>

Offers products and services to mothers of children who participate in sport. Goal is to be an advocate for a safer, saner, less stressful and inclusive youth sports experience for all children.

2.3 Online Publishers, Publications and Documents

Olympic Games, Sydney 2000 Web Archives

Librarians at Australia's National Sport Information Centre recently announced an exciting initiative that features the web resources from the Sydney Olympic Games. This major, first ever, initiative, undertaken by the National Library of Australia, part of NLA's Pandora Project, provides access to the complete results of the Games, a once-a-day snapshot of the Official Website and many other website snapshots produced by Australian organizations, news media, the community and businesses.

In addition to the archiving of websites, the Sydney Official Report, will be released in mid February 2002. Sufficient print copies of this report were printed to meet the IOC regulation on distribution of copies to members of the Olympic Family. Few additional print copies will be available for purchase. Instead, a website called Sydney 2000, GamesINFO, will host the fulltext version for the world's Internet users and sports researchers. This online edition will be available in mid February as well.

See <http://www.gamesinfo.com.au/>

GamesINFO's front end, is accessible in many languages including Chinese, Spanish, French, German, Italian and many other non-European languages.

See the following three Olympic Games sections on NLA's website archive:

Official Website: <http://pandora.nla.gov.au/tep/10194>

Torch Relay: <http://pandora.nla.gov.au/tep/10760>

Other OG sites: <http://pandora.nla.gov.au/tep/13335>

This latter website has the Arts & Culture, community projects, anti-Olympic websites and websites on the business world's involvement with the Sydney Olympic Games.

This initiative, the archival capture of web resources, will set a precedent and perhaps be a model, for other archives, national libraries, museums, and documentation centers. Finding web accessible guidelines and standards for this topic was a challenge. Through the assistance of the editor's colleagues at the Library of Congress, USOC and Australia's National Sport Information Centre (and Google), a search was conducted. Many of the national archival organizations are wrestling with how to archive individual documents found on websites (especially government information/resources), but this initiative takes the website archiving a step further. Two documents were found that consider archival capture of web resources and websites. They are:

National Archives of Australia. Policy and Guidelines for Keeping Records of Web-based Activity in the Commonwealth Government. Revised January 2001.

http://www.naa.gov.au/recordkeeping/er/web_records/intro.html

Dollar Consulting. Archival Preservation of Smithsonian Web Resources: Strategies, Principles, and Best Practices. July 20, 2001. 38p. Report produced by Dollar Consulting for the Smithsonian Institution Archives.

http://www.si.edu/archives/archives/dollar_report.html

This type of website archiving is an important sport history tool for future sport science researchers. It is hoped that other Organizing Committees for future Olympic Games and other international games understand the importance of this type of archiving (as well as maintaining the print records) and will form alliances with regional or national archives to implement the archival capture of dynamic web resources.

Online Publications

Of the many online publications found recently the following two may be of interest:

Australia. Dept. of Industry, Sciences and Resources. Sport and Tourism Division.

Game plan 2006: sport and leisure industry strategic plan, national plan, 2001

20p. Available in fulltext PDF format at: <http://www.isr.gov.au/publications/index.cfm>

Academic Libraries – Accessions Lists

In addition to the Publications Update found in each issue of NASLINE other academic libraries produce online Accessions Lists that can assist sport/kinesiology librarians in the collection development. They are:

Indiana University. HPER Library

<http://www.indiana.edu/~libhper/>

This library publishes a monthly Recent Additions list. Issues for June to December 2001 are on their website.

Ohio State University Libraries. Education, Human Ecology, Psychology, and Social Work Library

<http://www.lib.ohio-state.edu/ehsweb/material.htm>

Their New Books List is arranged by call number e.g. GV classification, with each specific book showing the publisher and date. By clicking on the specific call number, the user is taken to the full record in the main OSU library system catalogue.

Springfield College, Babson Library

<http://www.spfldcol.edu/>

On the college home page click on Library and then the Acquisitions List. Springfield College has the Sept – November 2001 issue online.

University of Illinois, Champaign-Urbana, Applied Life Studies Library

<http://www.library.uiuc.edu/alx/>

The ALSL has quarterly Accessions Lists from 1997 to 2001 on their website. This Library specializes in sport sciences, gerontology, nutrition and other related topics.

2.4 Other Technological Activities

Australian Sport & Recreation Course Database

<http://www.activeaustralia.org/asrcd/>

In a recent message to IASI-L (listserv), Greg Blood, Client Services Librarian at Australia's National Sport Information Centre announced the newly compiled and activated Australian Sport & Recreation Course Database. This was created in response to the many queries from within and external to Australia for a listing of sport and recreation courses. This database lists over 1000 sport and recreation courses conducted by over 300 organizations. The database can be searched by subject, course name, location, type of organization, and distance education. On the results screen basic information is found, e.g. name and address of organization, name of course. Greg mentioned that the database will provide basic information only as exact times, length and place of the courses changes so quickly. Each organization has been asked to place details of the courses on their websites.

3.0 PUBLICATIONS UPDATE

This list is compiled from cataloguing records created by the Library of Congress, British Library, National Library of Australia, National Library of Canada, OCLC's WorldCat, other current awareness lists and Amazon.com. Selection is made with academic and special sport library collections in mind and covers a wide range of material on physical education, the social sciences of sport, sport administration and sport sciences. Pre-publication records (CIP) are included if the expected publication date is within a few months.
