1.1 NASLIN

8th NASLIN Conference, Nike Campus, Beaverton, Oregon, August 10-11, 2001

Planning is underway for the next conference of NASLIN. Under the leadership of the local organizers, Cindy Romaine, Librarian at Nike (email: cindy.romaine@nike.com) and Henriette Heiny, Director of the University of Oregon's International Institute for Sport & Human Performance (email: hheiny@oregon.uoregon.edu) all kinds of exciting activities are planned which take advantage of this excellent location in northwestern US. Nike has recently added new buildings to the campus and has state of the art meeting rooms and eating facilities for conferences. There are motels within a mile and a half of the Nike Campus and we have tentatively booked the Hilton Motel as our conference accommodation, with the less expensive Fairfield Motel available next door.

The social part of the conference includes dinner on the Nike patio overlooking the lake, a trip to the Nike Techno Store and, hopefully, a wine tasting and banquet at a local winery.

.Henriette has established a conference website at:

<http://www.uoregon.edu/~naslin/>. Please note that the website has many sections listed, e.g. accommodation, program, registration, however not all parts are activated as yet. The website will be updated regularly as planning decisions are made. So start thinking about your plans for the summer of 2001. We have some exciting sessions in mind. This is the first time we have held our conference in the summer and hope that NASLIN members will combine summer holidays and this conference on the beautiful campus of Nike. We have included links to the Oregon Tourist and Convention Bureau to assist with vacation/conference planning.

Membership in NASLIN

At the NASLIN Steering Committee meeting in Lake Placid Oct. 26, 1999, committee members established a membership fee structure. The following letter from our Treasurer and the Chair is for NASLINE readers to consider:

Dear NASLIN Members,

"Unlike the Tennessee Williams character, NASLIN has not had to depend on the kindness of strangers. But, over the first decade of our existence, we have depended upon the kindness of friends. Our efforts to keep our conference registration fees low have often been supported by the institutions that have hosted our conferences and by special friends like the Sport Information Resource Centre and the Amateur Athletic Foundation of Los Angeles.

NASLIN's Steering Committee, meeting in Lake Placid last October, decided that it is time for a change, time to ask others to share, in a small but meaningful way, the expenses we incur as we produce our conferences. To this end, the steering committee adopted the following membership fee structure:

Individual Member	$0
Fellowship Member	$25 per year
Institutional Sponsor	$100 per year
Patron	$200 per year

All members will receive issue of NASLINE, our newsletter, and recognition for supporting the organization. Institutional Sponsors and Patrons will be acknowledged at NASLIN conferences. Patrons will be listed in each issue of NASLINE.

As you can see, there is no fee for Individual Membership. The Steering Committee affirmed its belief that individual membership should be open to all, unconditionally. Individuals who wish to support the organization personally may opt for a Fellowship Membership, but here is no requirement to do so. In addition, we would ask those of you who can to consider having your institution support us at the Institutional or Patron level.

NASLIN is committed to meeting every year and a half with our next conference at the Nike campus in Beaverton Oregon, Aug. 10-11, 2001. A successful membership campaign for the 2000/2001 academic year will ensure that the registration fee for that conference and for those that follow will be reasonable and affordable.

Thank you for your support.

Please make checks payable to NASLIN and send to the NASLIN Treasurer, Steve Gietschier, The Sporting News, 10176 Corporate Sq. Dr., St. Louis, MO 63132 and include the usual information: Name, Business name and address, Tel., Fax, Email address."

1.3 Amateur Athletic Foundation of Los Angeles (AAFLA)

Website: <http://www.aafla.org/>

A quick surf of the AAFLA website revealed that the digitizing work is progressing very well since our last report in February with many additional volumes added to the Olympic Library (and sport studies) part of the website. Added recently are:

1. Official Reports for Paris/Chamonix, 1924 and St. Moritz 1928 (both in French)
2. Olympic Review (English ed.) is now back to 1980 (AAFLA is working back from 1994)
3. ASSH studies in sport history have been added from No1, 1986 – No11, 1999 (Australian Society for Sport History) and the ASSH Bulletins
4. Olympic curriculum guide, an updated version of a guide produced by AAFLA a number of years ago.

Further Sports Journals to be Added To AAFLA's Fulltext Research Resources

Daniel Bell, AAFLA's new Research Director, also mentioned that two more journals will join the impressive digitized collection by the end of 2000. Permission has been granted by the International Society of Olympic Historians to digitize their Journal of Olympic History (formerly, Citius Altius Fortius: the ISOH journal, v1, 1992 - v4, no3, 1996; and change to present title with v5, no.1, 1997) and from the Sport Management Association of Australia and New Zealand for the journal entitled: Sport Management Review (v1, 1998- ISSN 1441-3523). With the addition of these titles, AAFLA is becoming a major website for sports researchers.

1.4 National Baseball Hall of Fame and Museum, Inc.

NASLIN Steering Committee member, James Gates, Library Director at the NBHFM, Inc. reports that the Library's online catalog is now available on their website:

<http://baseballhalloffame.org/index.htm>. The system is aptly named ABNER (American Baseball Network for Electronic Research) (and for Abner Doubleday, generally considered the inventor of baseball – Ed.) and includes the catalog, several archival finding aids, and some bibliographies. It should soon have the addition of a file containing hyperlinks to other scholarly baseball resources on the Internet. While ABNER is still rather small it should continue to grow for quite some time.

In addition NBHFM has just received word that the Babe Ruth Scrapbook Collection, (10 scrapbooks on his career, a gift from his family) have been formally named American Treasures by the Save American Treasures program. This is a high profile program being highlighted by the First Lady, Hillary Clinton. NBHFM has also been notified that they are to be awarded a $50,000 grant as part of a matching fund program to help pay for the preservation of these items.

And to top off the good news, Major League Baseball Properties has agreed to provide NBHFM with $250,000 to sponsor an academic study on the history of African-Americans in baseball between 1860 and 1960. This is the first time that NBHFM has ever sponsored such a study. James mentioned that anyone interested in this project should request a copy of the RFP (Request for Proposals) and should contact him directly by mail or email or fax (James Gates, Email: jgates@baseballhalloffame.org) National Baseball Hall of Fame and Museum, Box 590, Cooperstown, NY 13326, Tel: 607-547-7200, FAX: 607-547-4094

1.5 Joyce Sports Research Collection, University of Notre Dame

The website for the Joyce Sports Research Collection at the University of Notre Dame has had some recent additions as George Rugg, Curator, takes his task at hand and continues to arrange, catalog and make accessible on the web, information on the large collection of sports materials in this major repository. Recently the collection of 4600+ men's college basketball team media guides, (1940s +) have been added in an item-by-item list by name of university: <http://www.sport.nd.edu/Basketball/bkcolmg.html>

In addition, the University's OPAC will show the many recently catalogued, early and scarce sports monographs housed in the Library's Special Collection Dept. Approximately 1500 sport-related titles, published prior to 1920, US and British imprints, are in this special and rare book collection.

The Winkler Collection of Boxing Photographs, images of boxers dating from 1920s to 1960s have been scanned into a database and should be on the web soon. There are some examples of the possible 6500 photos already on the website, see <http://www.sports.nd.edu/exhibits/winkexhibit/winkmenu.html>. These photographs were originally on 4 x 5 inch glass negatives. Corel Photo House software pops up when web users select an image.

1.6 National Sporting Library

This outstanding library for equestrian sports in Middleburg, Virginia has now made their OPAC available to web users, (see: <http://www.nsl.org/>). Upon entering the home page, click on Catalog (in the list to the left) to access the NSL OPAC which utilizes Caspr's Library World software (Web: <http://www.caspr.com/>) and is supported by Library.com platform. The NSL collection now stands at 12,000 monographs and serial titles. In the late fall, the OPAC will have the 3,000 volume rare book collection added. This collection features 16th and 17th century books on equitation, the first shooting and fishing books published in America, Izaak Walton's The Complete Angler in the first five editions and many other works on fox hunting, hunting, plus the manuscript treasures.

Rob Weber is the Librarian at NSL and can be reached at: nsl@nsl.org. Tel: 703-687-6542

2.6 Other Technological Activities

Scholarly Sport Sites has been "CORC'd! OCLC's CORC Project

<http://www.ucalgary.ca/library/ssportsite/>

OCLC, the organization responsible for the library union catalog called WorldCat (now has over 40 million records from North American and international sources and the major tool your editor uses to find new publications) has taken a leadership role in a new cataloguing initiative by adding records for websites. This is called the CORC Project (Cooperative Online Resource Catalog). The CORC records were unveiled on July 6th, and are now part of the data in WorldCat. In cooperation with many libraries, standards and procedures have been established. Presently OCLC contributors are using the International Standard for Bibliographic Description for Electronic Resources, guidelines agreed to in 1997. In this way information about websites can now be found when using WorldCat, along with the monographic, serial, AV, and, noted of late, many more archival records.

Recently, for example, a colleague at the University of Georgia, Deanna Britton, Head, Social Sciences Dept., selected Scholarly Sport Sites to be "CORK'd". The task was given to UG's CORC representative, librarian John Riemer, who cataloged SSS for WorldCat (thanks, John and Deanna).

If your college or university library is a partner with OCLC and sends the library's records to the file, you can participate in the CORC project and include sport related or other websites. Contact your library's cataloguing department to make contact with the CORC representative. See the OCLC website for more information on the CORC Project: :
