1.1 NASLIN ACTIVITIES

<<<Announcing the Joint Conference of IASMHF and NASLIN>>>

<<<Distribution of the Nasline Online>>>

As reported in February 1998 issue of Nasline, the paper edition of our newsletter has been discontinued in favor of an online version. In order to assure a wider distribution, a survey was conducted to seek out the kinesiology/PE/sport sciences librarians at US/Canadian colleges and universities where master's and PhD programs are offered in this subject area. The list of institutions was drawn up utilizing information in Peterson's Guide to Graduate Studies. Approximately 304 US colleges/universities and 28 Canadian universities were identified with Master's or Ph.D. programs in sport management, exercise and human performance, sport sciences or physical education.

To date 24 US librarians are already on the NASLIN mailing list and 280 US college/university library administrators have been queried or letters written asking whether there is a PE/Sport Sciences librarian.

For the Canadian universities, 10 librarians are already on the NASLIN list, 9 have been sent letters and an additional 7 are now on the Naslin mailing list.

If readers of Nasline know of other individuals who would like to receive an online copy of the newsletter, please notify the editor at email: gghent@ucalgary.ca.

1.2 SPORT INFORMATION RESOURCE CENTRE

In the past few months there have been many staffing changes at SIRC. Gilles Chiasson, whose vision and dedication brought the organization from its infancy in the 1970's to the sport information powerhouse it is today, has stepped down as President and is now the Chief Information Officer. His most challenging task at present is the implementation of a new inhouse computer system. SIRC will be migrating from Minisis and implementing a more powerful, inhouse, computer system called Cuadra STAR. It is expected that the file conversion will be complete by the end of September or early October. Debra Gassewitz, who was brought on board last year as Vice-President has been appointed President of SIRC. In addition, Jean-Michel Johnson has been named Head Indexer, upon the resignation of Marion Fournier who contributed 15 devoted years at SIRC.

The implementation of Cuadra STAR will give SIRC the capacity to fulfil their goals of furnishing users with many enhanced services reflective of state-of-the-art computer-based era. Cuadra Associates in Los Angeles markets STAR for institutions requiring multi-user, multi-purpose software to manage information collections of all types. Cuadra Associates already provides services to specialized libraries, museums and archives including LC's Congressional Research Service, National Archives and Records Administration and ERIC (for further information see their website: www.cuadra.com)

Included in the SIRC package slated for implementation in October is:

<<<SPORT Detective>>>

SIRC will be mounting its database inhouse for use by subscribers via the internet. For a long time there have been individuals and small organizations who do not have convenient access to the database as does the university/college or large organizational subscribers. Through a monthly subscription fee of $49.95US these monthly subscribers can search the database to their hearts content. Monthly renewal can be made any number of times. Payment can be made through checks or credit card. This application will utilize the OVID web-based software.

<<<SPORT Update>>>

In the past an individual researcher could lodge a custom-made search profile with a vendor (e.g.BRS, a now defunct vendor) in order to have delivery of those citations which meet the search profile specifications. In the past these results were delivered in paper copy. With the implementation of the SPORT Update service, patrons can establish a search profile which reflects the individual research subject, adjust it once, and have the monthly citations delivered to their desktop. This service will cost $99US/year.

<<<SPORTQuest>>>

SIRC's interlibrary loan/document delivery service has been functioning for many years now, but with the implementation of their new inhouse system, SIRC will be able to fulfill document delivery requests to the desktop utilizing the internet.

<<<Fulltext Journals>>>

If you have surfed the SIRC website recently (www.sportquest.com) you will note that a new journal has been announced; Journal of Excellence (2 issues per year), edited by Terry Orlick. While the SPORTQuest website has issues of Nasline Online and the Revista Brasileira de ...this is the beginning of a new SIRC service. Do note the cost of the subscription both in fulltext and paper format ($34.95US and $44.95Can). In fact the database indexers have now begun to index other online, fulltext journal articles and soon you will see the contents of XXXX in the SPORTDiscus database.

<<<SPORTDiscus>>>

SIRC has also contracted with Ebsco for the SPORTDiscus to be offered to subscribers of the many Ebsco services. Ebsco is one of the largest serial subscription vendors in the US and around the world and offers a suite of databases to their subscribers.

1.3 NEWS OF NASLIN MEMBERS

Over the past six months we have had contact with a number of sport information specialists (in addition to the hundreds of kinesiology/sport sciences university/college librarians) and want to welcome them to NASLIN. They include:

Rafael Lind, Director, Inst. for Sport Development, Puerto Rico Dept of Sports and Recreation has re-established contact. He reports that the Government of Puerto Rico has implemented a new communication network, thus he was incommunicado for a long time. Note his new email address: ralind@prtc.net. He can still be reached by snail mail at: PO Box 3207, San Juan, Puerto Rico 00902, Tel: 809-721-2739 FAX: 809-724-4224

We also welcome Tanya C. Gray, Coordinator, Media Assets, United States Golf Association. She can be reached at: Golf House, PO Box 708, Liberty Corner Rd., Far Hills, NJ 07931-0708, Tel: 908-781-1053 FAX: 908-234-1472 Email: tgray@usga.org

Doug Stark, the new archivist/librarian at the Naismith Memorial Basketball Hall of Fame in Springfield, MA is busy assisting in the planning for a new Hall of Fame, working on organizing the NBHF archives/library and answering the many reference questions posed to him by researchers. He mentioned that the collection is open to researchers by appointment only. NMBHF offers reproduction services for the photographic, film and video collections. The "Hoop Hall" recently unveiled a special exhibit of women's professional basketball. Doug does not have an email address as yet (he'll have one when the new building is built - hopefully by fall of 2000), but he can be reached in the traditional way at: Tel: 413-781-6500 Ext 112 (Address is: PO Box 179, Springfield, MA 01101-0179)

Henriette Heiny, Director of the International Institute for Sport and Human Performance and Microform Publications at the University of Oregon reports that a new librarian is on board who will be cataloguing the theses for the Microform publications, be involved in collection development and see to the acquisition of theses for the project. Anne Miller was most recently employed at the library of the Bastyr University in Seattle. Anne can be reached via email at: micrpubs@oregon.uoregon.edu or by telephone at 541-346-0932

1.4 AMATEUR ATHLETIC FOUNDATION OF LOS ANGELES

AAFLA is continuing on its way to provide sport researchers with a plethora of services and since our last newsletter issue, the Library's catalogue is available for searching on their website (<http://www.aafla.org>). The search engine allows author/title/subject searching. Do note, however, when using LC subject headings to put two dashes between the subject words (e.g. baseball -- history).

Other exciting news from Wayne Wilson is that the International Olympic Committee has given AAFLA permission to convert 100 years (1894-1994) of the Olympic Review to digital format for publication on the AAFLA website. Both the French and English editions will be scanned and made available in PDF format.

As reported earlier, the 1932 and 1984 Official Reports are available at the AAFLA website, but now 1896 is available as is St. Moritz 1928 and Lake Placid 1932. The Official Report for Paris 1924 should be available by the end of October.

1.5 NATIONAL BASEBALL HALL OF FAME AND MUSEUM

Researchers who have recently gone to the NBHFM website have noticed the archival information and other baseball research information available and now James Gates, Librarian at the NBHFM, is busy implementing a new library system, INNOPAC, contracted through Innovative Interfaces. He and his staff is also in the process of raising funds for the required hardware and software so that the catalogue will eventually be accessible via the internet.

1.6 THE SPORTING NEWS LIBRARY

Jim Meier, librarian at The Sporting News is busy reconverting and reorganizing the book collection utilizing the records in OCLC's WorldCat database. He has found matches to 6,000 books and has added The Sporting News (noncirculating) to the records already in WorldCat. There are still over 500 books that OCLC does not have and he will have to do original cataloguing for these in the future. The next step though, is networking their database to the many editors and sportswriters at The Sporting News. This latter activity is planned for 1999.

1.7 NATIONAL COLLEGIATE ATHLETIC ASSOCIATION

As reported earlier, NCAA headquarters will be making a move to Indianapolis, Indiana in summer 1999 into a renovated floor mill, built in 1872 and in the Indiana Register of Historic Places. Mary Johnston, Librarian, also mentioned that the library and archives will undergo many changes as they are in the midst of selecting a computer system for all NCAA records. First priority is to scan and index all agendas, supplements and minutes of NCAA committee meetings from 1950's forward and then to ensure storage and retrieval of all electronic, paper, film and tape records for, initially, NCAA staff and members, and, eventually, to the public.

Visit their website for major publications available recently (<http://www.ncaa.org>)

Other publications available free of charge are:

- Characteristics of NCAA Division I recruits in the 1994-1995 Initial-Eligibility Clearinghouse, 1997, 25p. (NCAA research report; 96-03)
- Drug-testing program, 1997-98. 1997 12p.
- Race demographics of NCAA member institutions' athletics personnel. 1998, 111p. (chiefly tables)

1.8 ONLINE BOOKSELLERS AND VIDEO SOURCES

Web surfing for online booksellers is a daunting task especially when looking for those companies who have a substantive book stock of interest to the sport/physical education librarian or faculty member. While some sources are geared toward the general reader (Amazon books), there are some others who offer current and out of print (OP) books. Here are a number of sites that are worth a look:

ADVANCED BOOK EXCHANGE

Description: Has a good search engine with basic boolean capability to find books by subject category (e.g. baseball-history; cricket; history; Air sports...) or A/T.

One other specialist sport bookstore which is holding its own against the tide of computerization and other convenient methods of communication (e.g. fax) is:

SPORTS BOOKS

8302 Melrose Ave. Los Angeles, CA 90069, Tel: 213-651-2334, Toll free (US only) 1-800-626-0158 FAX: none

Email: none

Website: none

Description: Carries a stock of sports books from 30-35,000 title, both in print (about 20%) and out of print (80%). Also carries serial backruns, approximately 40-60 titles. The best way to determine whether they have a title is to telephone or write a letter.

<<<Video Sources Online>>>

The following source for videos, CD-ROMS, and books aimed at coaches is:

REEDSWAIN, INC.,

Website: <http://www.reedswain.com>

Address: 612 Pughtown Rd., Spring City, PA 19474, Tel: 1-800-331-5191 FAX: 1-610-469-9588

Email: richard@reedswain or click on email button

In answer to a query, this company holds copyright on most of the videos, but the videos can be shown to audiences in non-profit organizations, at lectures, and for home viewing without additional royalty payments.

2.4 Scholarly websites

<<< E-Journal Directories >>>

When searching Yahoo by category "Journals website directories" there are quite a number of subject-based websites which list online, fulltext scholarly and/or general journals. There are two, more comprehensive, sites which warrant a look.

New Jour: Electronic Journals and Newsletters

(<http://gort.ucsd.edu/newjour>)

This list begun by Michael Strangelove, University of Ottawa (he spoke at the 4th NASLIN Conference) and carried on by the Association of Research Libraries in 1993.

The directory is the place to announce newly planned, newly issued or revised, electronically networked journals or newsletters, especially where paper-based journals move into electronic format. The site has a place to enter one's own journal or newsletter or report titles not on the list. Listed is over 6,000 titles and a basic search capability is available for keyword in title or abstract ("sport" yielded 37 titles and "sports" - 50 titles. In a test of some titles a few web addresses are out of date, but can usually be found easily using Yahoo again.

E-journal

(<http://www.edoc.com/ejournal>)

This directory site established by Cadmus Communication Corp. is part of this printing/advertising/marketing company's offerings. The E-Journal directory is divided into categories, e.g. Academic and Reviewed Journals, College or University (house organs usually), Email newsletters, Political, Print Magazines.

<<<Other Websites of Interest>>>

Todd-McLean Physical Culture Collection

Web: www.edb.utexas.edu/faculty/jtodd/index.html

Description: Contains information on the physical culture collection at the University of Texas, Austin under the Collection Directors, Jan and Terry Todd. An outline of the important preservation activities and assistance available is listed along with a description of the contents of this collection of physical culture, bodybuilding, naturopathy, athletic training and alternative medicine materials.

American Statistical Association. Section on Statistics in Sports

Web: <http://www.isds.duke.edu/~box/sis/sports.html>

Description: This website maintained by the Duke University, Inst. of Statistics and Decision Sciences comprises a number of parts including a list of publications by this ASA section. They also maintain a well-organized list of sports statistics sources, either at the site or within "clickable" distance. The largest listing is for baseball (of course) and other major sports but it is good to see some others; cycling, fencing, volleyball, weightlifting. The third major part is a sample listing of citations to sport statistics articles and lastly, another great section listing newspaper sports pages, league sites, and other sports servers.

2.5 ONLINE REPORTS AND DOCUMENTS

Leisure Information Network (LIN)

Sponsors: Ontario Ministry of Citizenship, Culture and Recreation; Health Canada. Fitness Program.

Website: <http://www.lin.ca>

Contact person: Agnes Croxford, Email: acroxford@lin.ca

Tel: 416-426-7176 FAX: 416-426-7521

Description: LIN's goal is to provide a focus and infrastructure for the collection, dissemination and exchange of information amongst leisure service professionals. There are two major services:

a) Custom Information Service - Assists with research on specific topics. LIN staff will assist with research in finding the specific data or sources which are required. Contact them for service charges.

b) National Recreation Database - LIN is building a database of hard-to-find documents and mounting them on their website in fulltext. Included are unpublished reports, policies, training manuals and other grey literature produced by organizations, associations and governmental bodies. A search engine allows searching by keyword and title. The database presently contains over 2,000 documents and listings of items for sale by non-profit leisure-related organizations. LIN also has links to other fulltext documents available elsewhere on the web.

Sample of documents found in fulltext:

Manitoba Coordination Committee on Recreational Water Safety. Resource manual: waterfront safety guidelines in Manitoba. April 1998. 30p.

and two codes of ethics:

Alberta Therapeutic Recreation Association. Code of ethics.

Canadian Association for Health, Physical Education, Recreation and Dance. CAPHERD's code of ethics.
