News from Sports Organizations

NASLIN Has a New Website

<http://libguides.ucalgary.ca/naslin>

As indicated above and in the NASLINE header, NASLIN and the back issues of NASLINE are now available on the University of Calgary's Libguides website. The url www.naslin.org has been abandoned.

LA84 Foundation, (Los Angeles)

<http://www.la84foundation.org/>

The LA84 Foundation and Southern California Municipal Athletic Federation (SCMAF) have partnered with leading coaching education provider American Sport Education Program (ASEP) to offer customized online training to SCMAF coaches, in an initiative designed to reach 15,000 youth sport coaches over the next five years. The program features a general coaching philosophy course, LA84 Foundation's Art of Coaching for SCMAF Coaches, plus sport-specific courses for flag football, basketball, and volleyball. The Art of Coaching is now available to SCMAF coaches. The Art of Coaching was released in late December 2009. The sport-specific courses will be ready in fall 2010. The courses will be made available through the ASEP Web site at <http://www.ASEP.com/>

Through the LA84 Foundation's sponsorship, 3,000 coaches a year will be able to take the courses at no cost.

IASI's New Ning Network

<http://sportinfo.ning.com/>

The former website of the International Association for Sports Information, www.iasi.org is no longer available. The new website and communication network is now available for anyone interested in sport information. Go to the above url and sign up.

Technology Update - Surfing the Web

2.1 Notable Websites and Collections

She's Game: Women Making Australian Sporting History

<http://www.womenaustralia.info/exhib/sg/sport-home.html>

This website produced by the Australian Women's Archives Project, highlights the achievements of Australian women who have contributed to Australian sporting life and culture. The Introduction outlines Australian women's sport history, along with a chronological list of outstanding athletes, administrators and biographies of outstanding women. See A-Z section for references to archival resources, international game medalists, images and activities.

Glory Days: New York Baseball, 1947-1957

<http://www.mcny.org/glorydays/>

Announced in the Scout Report, v16, no1, January 8, 2010, this online exhibit from the Museum of the City of New York explores the relationships of three New York professional baseball teams; the New York Yankees, the New York Mets and the Brooklyn Dodgers, through ten short chapters that chronicle the evolution of the game from 1947 to 1957. Each chapter has a topical theme, complemented by a series of digitized items, including programs, scorecards, stadium photographs, World Series rings, and so on. Many photos are included.

National Operating Committee on Standards for Athletic Equipment

<http://www.nocsa.org/>

NOCSAE develops performance standards for protective equipment used in a variety of sport. The website has a list of open access documents on evaluation and testing, headgear and faceguard research.

Sports Legacy Institute

<http://sportslegacy.org/>

The SLI was founded in 2007 to “solve the sports concussion crisis.” The organization has Medical and Athlete Advisory Boards and is in the process of adding research information to the initial studies on a football team positions and increased risk of brain injury problems. The Coaches Clinics provides information on youth sports, and education programs.

New Acquisition at the H.J. Lutch Stark Center for Physical Culture and Sports, University of Texas, Austin <http://www.starkcenter.org>

The Manager of Library and Archives, Cindy Slater reports that the Center has received the Charles Yesalis papers recently. Dr. Yesalis is the recently retired Professor of Health Policy and Administration and Exercise and Sport Science from Pennsylvania State University. His research and publications focused on anabolic/androgenic steroids. See the Director’s blog (Terry Todd) for further details <http://starkcenter.org/blog/>

3.7 Books with Sport Chapters

With so many books available online at Netlibrary, or ebrary (and Google eventually) finding chapters on sport topics is so much easier than in the "olden days". Using the "notes" search in Worldcat (nt:) a number of sport chapters were found not only in sport-related books but also in non-sport books. A sampling of the non-sport books.....
